NOON REPORTS.

Just For Fun.

PORTLAND, July 20 .- Gen. Neal Dow has written a letter accepting the nomination for the Presidency by the National Prohibition party. After commenting at some length on the evils of the liquor traffic and espectability of the prohibitory movement, concludes as follows: "I consider the obet of the prohibitionists of this country be of supreme importance to the inter ests of the nation and people, aside from its bearing upon the moral and religious welfare of the people. I consider the suppresion of liquor traffic to be an object of far reater political importance than ony other claiming the attention of the coun-My life has been largely devoted to accomplishment of that purpose. Perans I may live to see my dearest hopes in elation to it realized, at least in this my wn State, but, however that may be, in the future as in the past, I shall keep that object in view. While I sincerely wish that the choice of the candidate by the Cleveland onvention had fallen upon some other than myself, I accept the nomination villingly, being sure that it will prove to the humble beginning of a triumphant

The Wallace Investigation.

NEW YORK, July 20.-The Wallace mmittee continued its session to-day, examining witnesses as to the alleged natalization frauds in 1868.

Senator McDonald, who cross-examined Ommissioner Davenport, seemed annoyed t the latter's deficient hearing. Davenport objected to return the naturalizaon paper taken from Antonio Kurshell and taking it from Senator McDonald, retained possession of it.

Ex-Judge Jones testified that he was idge of the Superior Court in 1868; he naturalized parties in that year, but ile he was on the bench not one person d been admitted to citizenship irregu-

Rifle Shooting. HUB PUNCH!

WIMBLEDON, July 20.—There is good light to-day, but with variable and uncertain winds. In the competition for any rifle association cup, Brown and Gerrish, of the American team, each shot in two nominations. Brown made 50 and 49, and Gerrish 49 and 48. Baker, of the English team, made 48 in a contest for the Arthur prizes out of a possible 50. Brown made 49 and Gerrish 46. In shooting for ladies' prizes with any rifle, Gerrish scored 31, Brown 29, Baker 34.

The match on Saturday next will commence at an early hour—probably 10 o'clock a. m., and two ranges will be shot at before lunch. Brown's shooting this morning comprises 32 bulls' eyes, which were made almost without a break.

In the competition for the Arthur prizes, Farrow scored 49, Martin Smith 48. Private Ferguson, of the First Regiment of Argyll Volunteers, won the Queen's prize. His score was 74.

Killed His Mother-in-Law, &c.

NEW YORK, July 20 .- A special from Syracuse, N. Y., says that on Sunday last wealthy farmer named Easterly, living near the village of Lyons, New York, became involved in a quarrel with his wife. The latter's mother interfered for Mrs. Easterly's protection, whereupon Easterly killed his mother-in-law with an axe. He then attacked his wife with the same weapon, and after striking at her ineffectually several times inside the house he chased her out of doors, and overtaking her under a tree in the yard split her skull open. Harnessing his horse he then drove to Canandaigua outlet, stripped himself naked and drowned himself. He was 60 years of age and worth $20,000 or $30,-000. He leaves two children.

Stormy.

DANVILLE, VA., July 20 .- Yesterday afternoon a storm of wind, hail and rain prevailed, followed last night about midnight by another, the severest known in this section for years. The thunder and lightning were terrific, the rain came in sluices and the wind in a tornado. Crops were greatly injured. Dan river rose several feet and is still rising.

Railroad Accident.

HARTFORD, July 20.—A freight train thrown from the track, near this city, this morning, by a misplaced switch. Conductor Bacon was killed, and the engineer and fireman were severely injured.

The Fasting Fool.

NEW YORK, July 20 .- At noon to-day Dr. Tanner was in good condition, with no marked variation in pulse or temperature. He took his customary drive during the morning, drank freely of spring water, and answered six letters.

Appointed Judge.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Gen. Horace Russell was this morning appointed by Gov. Cornell to be Judge of the Superior Court in place of Chief Justice Curtis, deceased.

The most important matter among the important matters to be dealt with by the next Legislature is, undoubtedly, the im provement of the Common School System. That Legislature will adjourn, as preceding Legislatures have adjourned, without fulfilling the full measure of duty imposed by the Constitution of North Carolina, if it be not selected by the people with the distinct understanding that the necessary taxes are to be levied. That the people will cheerfully pay a proper tax for proper schools, we have not a shadow of a doubt. What is needed is that the people convince the men sent to the Assembly that they need not stand in fear of rebuke for doing their duty; that grumble as the people always do and always will grumble about taxes they will never utter a word of complaint of a tax for education if the tax is sufficient to insure them the worth of their money. The Democratic candidates for State officers are thoughly in earnest in the intent to improve the system of public education. Readers of THE NEWS have already seen that in their speches at Shelby Gov ernor JARVIS and Colonel KENAN made this matter of earnest discussion, and they and their colleagues will urge upon the people whenever they and the people meet the importance and necessity of careful selection of members of Assembly who may be relied upon to do their duty in the premises. This newspaper will do what a newspaper may to aid in their patriotic purpose. In season and out of season, if it be ever out of season to talk to the people of their highest duty to themselves and their children, it will press the matter which for four years has had the larger share of our attention.

And to-day, about this very question of duty. It is maintained by some persons that it is no part of the duty of a commonwealth to educate children; that it is a parental duty, and not the duty of the State. If the duty of the State to educate the children of the commonwealth were to be determined by authority, it might be regarded as settled by the usage of civilized nations. It may be affirmed that every nation which stands in the van of civilization has recognized this as a duty and made provision for it. It may be replied that this is a question upon which authority avails nothing; that it admits of different views, like other questions, so differently determined by different nations-as that of government for example, whether monarchical, aristocratic or popular; or the mode of administering justice; or the religious institutions which shall be maintained, if any. If the word authority were used in the sense of obligation, the reply would be just. But it is not used in any sense but as implying the sanction of reason-as implying that the general consent of nations upon this one point, differing as they do upon so many others, demonstrates that there is something here which commends itself to the enlightened judgment of mankind. Whatever obtains under every sort of advanced government, and among various races of men, must have some solid foundation in reason. The grounds of this general consent are obvious. The great end of the institution of government is the protection of life and property. There are but two ways known to human experience in which this can be done: the one to educate the citizen to obey the laws; the other the infliction of punishment upon their violation. Take away education, and we have nothing but the jail the penitentiary and the gallows. Will any man contend that it is the duty of a State to punish crime, and not to teach the nature and enormity of crime? Is it not plain that obedience founded upon a right moral sentiment, upon a true perception of the benefits and blessings of a government of law, is better than the obedience which has nothing but the slavish fear of the "hangman's whip" for its motive? How unstable and uncertain is the one! How firm and permanent is the

But the reasons, however solid, which led to the adoption of universal education in the Old World, apply with tenfold force under the system of government existing in the United States. A government adequate for the protection of person and property may co-exist with the densest ignorance on the part of the people when there are hereditary legislators to make laws or participate in making them, and a hereditary executive backed by a standing army to enforce them. There the people have little part in the government; their duties may be summed up in two words; submission and obedience. The condition of things here is the very reverse. Here but little power is lodged in the executive; his term of office is short; and he is elected by the people. Here the people, through their representatives, make the laws, and they are enforced in the last resort by their own embodied power—the posse comitatus. The army here is or ought to be unknown as an instrument of civil government. It should be known only as an engine of war. If reason dictated the expediency of education in the Old World, it dictates its no cessity here. The sovereignty of the peo- be present.

ple is the true and only foundation of our system of government. That sovereignty rests, and depends for its proper exercise, on the intelligence of the people-an intelligence embracing information, thought, reflection, judgment; in short educated intelligence.

The necessity of educated intelligence for the successful working, nay, for the maintenance of our system of Government. is urged in all the messages of the earlier chief magistrates of our country. It was announced and urged by Washington in his farewell address. It was enforced by JOHN ADAMS in his inaugural address. In that masterly summary of the principles of government-in precision and comprehensiveness to this day unapproachedcontained in JEFFERSON'S inaugural, this has a prominent place. It is insisted on in the inaugural of MADISON. These are admitted to have been the chief architects of our government, and there are no name which carry such weight in its exposition as those of JEFFERSON and MADISON. Upon the question of the abstract duty of government to educate its people, the authority of JEFFERSON is decisive; of all the statesmen of the world he it was who restricted the functions of government within its straitest limits. Under the authority of these great names the question ought to be permitted to rest; at least until it can be shown that they did not properly comprehend it, or did not rightly understand the principles of our government. To the people of North Carolina, however, it never was an open question; as our constitution has stood at every period, this has been to us res adjudicata

been mightily stirred up against dueling of late, the cause being the late fatal duel which they forced the dead man to seek. The mischief done, everybody denounces the duel and dueling, but everybody seems afraid to enforce the law, or to take steps leading to its enforcement The persons on both sides who were con. cerned in the duel defied the law in th most aggravated and public manner. If they are not to be punished, the law against dueling is a farce and might as well be re pealed. There is no question as to the guilt or innocence of anybody. The law has been violated, and everybody knows who the violators are. Yet the surviving duelist bullies the whole State at a dis tance, and the people of the vicinage as described in the Courier's correspondence reprinted this morning. Before the matter is settled there is likely to be further loss of life. One of the CASH people, it is probable, will challenge the editor of the Courier, who has done what he deemed his duty in face of the orders of one CASH to keep silence; the other Cash is likely to do the same by Senator BUTLER. Both editor and Senator are men of approved courage, and have also the "courage of their opinions" sufficiently developed to refuse the challenges. When forced to shoot the Cashes, as they will do if necessary. the people around them will acquire the courage of their opinions, and dueling in South Carolina may cease. It would seem that nothing less will check the

MR. GARFIELD'S DE GOLYER record is now as complete as that in the Credit Mobilier transaction. A sworn committee of his party friends in Congress found him guilty of fraud and perjury in one case; the United States Supreme Court, composed also of his party friends, has passed sentence on him in the other, as a Radical Illinois Judge had previously done. See the decision in the DE GOLYER case elsewhere printed in this morning's NEWS. A minister of the Gospel, a member of Congress, a candidate for President; bribe-taker, a thief, a perjurer! These are ugly words to use of any man, but they embody the verdict of a jury of his friends, and the sentence of a court packed with

In one column of last night's New York papers are collected together from the neighboring region the lynching by rope and bullet of one man; the unprovoked murder of a negro; the murder of a white man by his brother-in-law: the murder of two policemen; the slaughter of a town marshal; the killing of a negro in a Chicago house of ill-repute, a white woman in the case; and finally a case of suicide. All these were outside the city, but in the land of law and order. And yet to find a text for sermonizing, all these papers turn to the South Carolina duel, as they have done these many days.

THE BUSY AND PEACEFUL SOUTH.

In the course of time-when the Presidential campaign has fairly opened and the fighting waxed hot-we shall doubtless hear much, says the New York Journal of Commerce, of Southern outrages committed on the blacks by Kuklux gangs. The demand for such stories will be met with a liberal supply, as usual. At present, be it noted, there are no reports of whippings and other wrongs inflicted on the freedmen by white ruffians. The profoundest peace seems to, and unquestionable does, prevail between the two races at the South. Whites and blacks are busy with the crops, which are unusually good in most of the Southern States. The great staple, cotton, has not shown a higher average of condition in July for several years. No State has been more disturbed by race dissensions in former years than Louisiana. But the New Orleans papers of all parties assure us that peace and good feeling now reign through the length and breadth of that State. The last Louisiana crops paid the freedmen exceedingly well for their labor conducted on shares or wages; and the present season promises still better. Reports of like tenor reach us from every part of the South. One evidence of better times down there is the complete stoppage of the exodus which has played so much mischief with the deluded freedmen in the past year. There never was any good reason for leaving their old homes. There never was a time when they were not better off in the South than they could possibly be in Kansas or any other Western or Northern State. The lesson sadly learned by several hundreds of poor, homesick, broken-hearted negroes in their wildgoose chase for forty acres and a mule apiece out in the boundless plains of Kansas last fall, has sufficed for the whole negro population of the South. They do not want to see the folly of an exodus for themselves. They are prepared henceforth to stay in the South where they were born and belong, and are best fitted by climatic and all other conditions to reside. The whites, on their part, are rejoiced to retain these laborers, and to pay them liber. ally and treat them well. These are the reasons why the South is to-day undisturbed by any war of races, and sets an almost idyllic example of industry, contentment and peace.

IMMIGRATION.

Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS. Wellingboro, Eng., July 8, 1880. EDITOR NEWS:-Although I have little, in fact no time, for newspaper correspondence, I have thought that perhaps a ittle glance at my work in England may be of interest to you of the Old North

Since my arrival here in April last I have been actively engaged in many ways endeavoring to promote the object of my appointment. According to a plan arranged by the Commissioner of Agriculture, I visit the market towns of England, where every week the farmers and their wives come in from the country districts to sell their produce, wheat, corn, &c., as also dairy produce, butter, eggs, &c., and also cattle, oxen, sheep and pigs. At these markets (I generally reach two or three in a week) I meet during the day from five hundred to one thousand of the farming class. I distribute pamphlets, bills, &c., and then in the intervals of their business gather them in groups and talk to them, first upon emigration, for all more or less think about that; then upon North Carolina, a place no one has ever heard of: for whilst the Western States and Texas have been advertising extensively for years, and have agents all up and down at every part of the Empire, till now North Carolina has been unknown. Of course there is a great amount of false impression which I have to disperse. Sometimes I meet with opposition; this is almost always from young sprigs of the landlord class, but I always leave the recipient of many thanks. When I can make arrangements I give an evening's lecture, but hitherto the price charged for hire of room is an obstacle. During the lecture season I am making arrangements with some literary societies to give one as a part of their course. Next week I go to a large town in Norfolk by

I also write a great many letters to paries who apply to me for information through my advertisement, so that already am in communication with parties at every corner of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, and have had one from Spain. For the results: I could send scores every week into North Carolina, but they are those classes who would neither de themselves nor North Carolina any good, the great majority having no means; and as we do not lack for labor I have to advise them to go elsewhere. Those whom we do want are more difficult to come at, and when I have reached and convinced them it still is a work of time for them to sell out their stock, to quit their farms and to realize their capital. I have. however, quite a number getting ready to come out as soon as possible this fall and next spring, and I can only conclude at present by asking the people of North Carolina to fulfill my promises to them by giving them a hearty welcome, and by easing their way to settling as much as you possibly can.

Any information from any part of the State will be welcome to me. I am, yours very truly,

CLEVELAND SPRINGS, July 17. Would I be charged with arrogating some of the provoking prerogatives of Old Tantalus, were I to tell of the pleasant transition which delivered me from a temperature that on last evening stood well up in the nineties, and placed me

1.400 FEET ABOVE THE SEA, in full view of three ranges of mountains, and with a temperature below 78° And it required no very arduous labor to accomplish this, for with the airy and comfortable sleeping cars on the Raleigh and Augusta Railroad, attended by a neat and polite porter, under the charge of such an accommodating conductor as Capt. Ward, the night ride from Raleigh to Charlotte is pleasant and refreshing.

Arriving at Shelby, at 12 m., we found he whole town alive with people. The telegraph has already informed the readers of THE NEWS of the large crowd, the handsome reception of our candidates, the presence of the ladies, the splendid effect of the elaborate speeches on the people, and I will pass to other scenes and subjects. remarking that

COL. CHARLES R. JONES. of the Charlotte Observer, made a capital speech in response to a call of the crowd confining himself to what he saw, heard and felt in the Cincinnati Convention.

This section of the State is well adapted to the growth of all our staple crops—is healthful, with good water and fine climate. and altogether is one of the most charming portions of Piedmont Carolina. The rain fall has been remarkably light this season throughout this and several of the adjoining counties, and consequently the crops are small and backward. Within the past few years the culture of cotton has very greatly increased in this county, but with its varied soils, it is to be hoped the farmers will not fall victims to the fatal policy of producing only cotton and buying everything else. There can be no vigorous or permanent prosperity with any people who follow this suicidal course.

CLEVELAND VINEYARD. This section has long been noted for its fine grapes and other fruits, and the vinevard at this place has been a fine success. It was established in 1867 and embraces 20 acres, with a large variety of grapes, but those that succeed best are the Norton, Virginia, Concord, Delaware and Catawba. Its capacity is 10,000 gallons per annum and has a cellar of 25,000 gallons' capacity. and the furniture of which cost $2,500 and is all of the latest improved styles. CLEVELAND SPRINGS. This popular and pleasant resort was opened about one hundred years ago, and has always shared popular favor. It is two miles from Shelby and three-fourths of a mile from the railroad. Last year the arrivals numbered 218, and up to date this year they number 341, of which 147 are now present. Among them I notice Gov. and Mrs. Jarvis, Judge A. A. McKov and family, Judge W. M. Shipp and family, Attorney General Kenan, Col. Anderson, of Raleigh; R. M. Miller and family, of Charlotte. MOORE COUNTY ITEMS:-

Sanford, July 20 .- A few days spen n the Pocket neighborhood, in this. (Moore) county, enable me to inform you of the flattering prospect of the cotton crop in that section. On the farms of Messrs. Wm. C. Campbell, Daniel I McIver, Columbus McIver, Alexander and John McIntosh, and Mr. Nall, on and near Little Pocket Creek, the cotton looks beautiful; while Mr. Peter M. Campbell on Big Pocket, and Duncan Campbell, on Deep River, can make an equally good showing. In the neighborhood of Carbonton. I understand the crop looks remarkably well. Refreshing rains have gladdened the hearts of the farmers, and they prefer to "talk horse," (crops) much more than politics. The corn crop, though somewhat backward, is thriving. The area devoted to it is about the same as last year, while the cotton area has been

HALIFAX POLITICS:-

Halifax, July 20, 1880.—Agreeable to appointment the citizens of Halifax met at the court house and organized a Demoeratic Hancock and Jarvis Club, State and National Association. Mr. James M. Mullen was called to the chair, who explained the object of the meeting, after which, on motion, Mr. James M. Grizzard was elected permanent chairman. Messrs. Benjamin F. Gary, W. F. Parker and Dr. M. A. Wilcox were elected Vice-Presidents, Doctor John O'Brien Principal Secretary, and Robert L. Mullen and R. G. Mabry assistants.

The meeting closed with a few able, enthusiastic and patriotic remarks of the chairman. The meeting adjourned until next Saturday, the 24th inst.

General Arthur's Acceptance.

NEW YORK, July 15, 1880. DEAR SIR :- I accept the position assigned me by the great party whose action you announce. This acceptance implies approval of the principles declared by the Convention, but recent usage permits me to add some expression of my own views. The right and duty to secure honesty and order in popular elections is a matter so vital that it must stand in front. The authority of the National Government to preserve from fraud and force elections at which its own officers are chosen is a chief point on which the two parties are plainly and intensely opposed. Acts of Congress for ten years have, in New York and elsewhere, done much to curb the violence and wrong to which the ballot and the count have been again and again subjected -sometimes despoiling great cities, some times stifling the voice of a whole State, often seating, not only in Congress, but on the Bench and in Legislatures, numbers of men never chosen by the people. The Democratic party, since gaining pos session of the two houses of Congress, has made these just laws the object of bitter, ceaseless assault, and, despite all resistance, has hedged them with restrictions cunningly contrived to baffle and paralyze them. This aggressive majority boldly attempted to extort from the Executive his approval of various enactments destructive of these Election laws, by revolutionary threats that a constitutional exercise of the veto power would be punished by withholding the appropriations necessary to carry on the Gov-ernment. And these threats were actually carried out by refusing the needed appropriations, and by forcing an extra session of Congress, lasting for months and re sulting in concessions to this usurping de mand, which are likely, in many States, to subject the majority to the lawless will of minority. Ominous signs of public disapproval alone subdued this arrogant pow er into a sullen surrender for the time be ing of a part of its demands. The Republican party has strongly approved the stern refusal of its representatives to suffer the overthrow of statutes believed to be salutary and just. It has always insisted, and now insists, that the Government of the United States of America is empowered and in duty bound to effectually protect the elections denoted by the Constitution as national. More than this, the Republican party holds, as a cardinal point in its ereed, that the Government should, by every means known to the Constitution protect all American citizens everywhere in the full enjoyment of their civil and political rights. As a great part of its work of reconstruction, the Republican party gave the ballot to the emancipated slave as his right and defence. A large increase in the number of members of Congress, and of the Electoral College, from the former slave-holding States, was the immediate result. The history of recent years abounds in evidence that in many in many places-espec where their number has been great enough to endanger Democratic control-the very men by whose elevation to citizenship this increase of representation was effected have been debarred and robbed of their voice and their vote. It is true that no State statute or Constitution in so many words denies or abridges the exercise of their political rights; but the modes employed to bar their way are no less effectual. It is a suggestive and startling thought that the increased power derived from the enfranchisement of a race now denied its share in governing the country -wielded by those who lately sought the overthrow of the Government-is now the sole reliance to defeat the party which represented the sovereignty and nationality of the American people in the greatest crisis of our history. Republicans cherish none of the resentments which may have animated them during the actual conflict of arms. They long for a full and real reconciliation between the sections which were needlessly and lamentably at strife; they sincerely offer the hand of good will. but they ask in return a pledge of good faith. They deeply feel that the party, whose career is so illustrious in great and patriotic achievement, will not fulfill its claim and the powerful dare not deny. The resolution referring to the public service seems to me deserving of approval Surely, no man should be the incumbent of an office the duties of which he is for any cause unfit to perform, who is lacking in the ability, fidelity, or integrity which a proper administration of such office denands. This sentiment would doubtless meet with general acquiescence, but opinion has been widely divided upon the wisdom and practicability of the various reformatory schemes which have been suggested, and of certain proposed regulations governing appointments to public office. he efficiency of such regulations has been distrusted, mainly because they have seemed to exalt mere educational and abstract tests above general business capacity, and even special fitness for the particular work in hand. It seems to me that the rules which should be applied to the management of the public service may properly conform, in the main, to such as regulate the conduct of successful private business. Original appointments should be based upon ascertained fitness. The tenure of office should be stable. Positions of responsibility should, so far as practicable, be filled by the promotion of worthy and efficient officers. The investigation of all complaints, and the punishment of all official misconduct, should be prompt and thorough. These views, which I have long held, repeatedly declared, and uniformly applied when called upon to act, I find embodied in the resolution, which, of course, I approve. I will add that, by the acceptance of public office, whether high or low, one does not, in my judgment, escape any of his responsibilities as a citizen, or lose or impair any of his rights as a citizen, and that he should enjoy absolute liberty to think and speak and act in political matters according to his own will and conscience, provided only that he honorably, faithfully and fully discharges all his official duties.

The resumption of specie payments—one of the fruits of Republican policy has brought the return of abundant prossound money, the large reduction of our public debt and of the burden of interest, the high advancement of the public credit, all attest the ability and courage of the Republican party to deal with such financial problems as may hereafter demand solution. Our paper currency is now as good as gold, and silver is performing its legitimate function for the purposes of change. The principles which should govern the relations of these elements of the currency are simple and clear. There must be no deteriorated coin, no depreciated paper. And every dollar, whether of metal or paper, should stand the test of the world's fixed standard.

The value of popular education can nardly be overstated. Although its interests must of necessity be chiefly confided to voluntary effort and the individual action of the several States, they should be encouraged, so far as the Constitution permits, by the generous co-operation of the National Government. The interests of the whole country demand that the advantages of our common school system should be brought within the reach of every citizen, and that no revenues of the Nation or of the States should be devoted the support of sectarian schools. Such changes should be made in the resent tariff and system of taxation as will relieve any overburdened industry or class, and enable our manufacturers and artisans to compete successfully with those of other

The Government should aid works of nternal improvement national in their character, and should promote the development of our water-courses and harbors wherever the general interests of commerce

Four years ago, as now, the Nation stood at the threshold of a Presidential election. and the Republican party, in soliciting a continuance of its ascendancy, founded its hope of success, not upon its promises, but upon its history. Its subsequent course has been such as to strengthen the claims which it then made to the confidence and support of the country. On the other hand, considerations more urgent than have ever before existed forbid the accession of its opponents to power. Their success, if success attends them, must chiefly come from the united support of that section which sought the forcible disruption of the Union, and which, according to all the teachings of our past history will demand ascendancy in the councils of the party to whose triumph it will have made by far the largest contribution.

There is the gravest reason for appre ension that exorbitant claims upon the public Treasury, by no means limited to he hundreds of millions already covered by bills introduced in Congress within the past four years, would be successfully urged if the Democratic Party should succeed in supplementing its present control of the national legislature by electing the Executive also.

There is danger in intrusting the control of the whole law-making power of the government to a party which has in almost derstood to be active-visited the every Southern State repudiated obliga tions quite as sacred as those to which the faith of the Nation now stands pledged.

I do not doubt that success awaits the Republican party, and that its triumph will assure a just, economical, and patriotic Administration. I am, respectfully. your obedient servant, C. A. ARTHUR. To the Hon. George F. Hoar, President of the Republican National Convention.

Bullying the State.

[Special Dispatch to the Charleston News.] CHERAW, S. C., Saturday, July 17 .-Col. E. B. C. Cash and his son, W. B Cash, accompanied by Col. Watts, of Laurens, came into town yesterday for the purpose of obtaining the release of Col. Cash, on a writ of habeas corpus, and also with the avowed intention of attacking Mr. Pegues, the publisher of the local paper, The Carolina Sun, which, in its comments on the recent duel, has expressed the general sentiment of the State. A threat of horse-whipping had been previously made by young Cash, who came to Cheraw some nights since to carry it out, but was persuaded by friends to relinquish his purpose. After a few days spent in a state of siege, the threatened journalist was assured by people of standing that the trouble was entirely over, and was thus thrown off his guard. Col. Cash and his son lounged about Front street all day, awaiting the arrival of Solicitor Sellers. Mr. Pegues, when going quietly home to dinner, passed the group sitting at a street corner and eating watermelons. As he turned the corner, his back being to them, young Cash drew his pistol, calling out: "Stop, you d-d scoundrel," with other words to the same effect. The father threw off his coat and drawing his pistol vowed that he "would see a fair fight." Some gentlemen forming part of the group hastily intervened and put Mr. Pegues out of reach, thrusting him into an open doorway and locking him up. There was cursing and threats of violence outside for a while, which finally ended in an adjournment to the nearest bar-room in company with the sheriff. There was great excite ment. The Intendant was out of town. but a member of council was called upon to arrest the pair, which he declined to do. but said it should be done in the event of another demonstration. In the meantime and until dark, having been warned that another attack was threatened, Mr. Pegues, who had made his way to his office, was forced to remain there on guard. while free and untrammelled his assailants paraded the streets in the face of a community that nominally condemns their whole action. Mr. Solicitor Sellers arrived on the evening train; a hearing was had before Judge McIver, and Col. Cash was admitted to bail in the sum of three thousand dollars. The solicitor at first demanded that the bail be fixed at twenty thousand dollars; then at ten thousand dollars: but the counsel for the accused succeeded in getting it reduced to three thousand dollars. No proceedings whatever were taken against young Cash for his cowardly attack upon Mr. Pegues, and he and his father returned to Cash's depot, openly continuing their threats against the proprietor of The Sun.

The News and Courier containing Gen. Butler's manly letter, had been received before the party left town, and Col. E. B. C. Cash indulged in some of his choicest expletives respecting it, vowing that he would give the Senator "a wooden heart living, as his wife had hitherto provided living hitherto provided living had hitherto provided living had hitherto provided living hitherto to match his wooden leg," but without for his wants by taking in washing.

A WARNING TO RALEIGH BOY.

[From the New York Times, 16st., Although the explosion of the this Although the Caposion of the third two small boys of the Pleasantville W tary Institute has naturally attracted great deal of attention, no authentic an full account of the affair has yet bee made public. This is undoubtedly due the fact that the conductors of the seh have, for obvious reasons, desired to hus the matter up. Nevertheless, the publi has a right to know the facts, and interest of parents as well as of small boy

Various means have been adopted from time to time by school boys with a view of lessening the pains of corporal punish ment. There is a tradition in all that alum has a very beneficial effect fact, it is stoutly maintained that when boy has been thoroughly soaked in alm his skin becomes so tough that he can sign himself with Christian fortitude comparative cheerfulness to a private in terview with his teacher. There are how ever, manifest difficulties in the way completely soaking a boy in alum wat and hence the virtues ascribed to alum school boy tradition have never h thoroughly tested.

Shingles and the covers of atlases la from time immemorial been used for protection by small boys. It may readily conceded that when a boy is en fully plated with stout shingles or this book-covers he is to a large extent imne vious to assault, but the great difficulty has always been to conceal from the teach the fact that a boy is armor-plated. How dreds of times a boy has kept an appoint ment with his teacher with full confiden in the judicious arrangement of his shine but at the first blow his secret has discovered. No teacher of any experier can fail at the very first blow to detect difference between a boy and shing When the former is struck, the cane bounds gently from the elastic surf without in the least jarring the hand a wrist of the operator, but when shing are struck the operator feels a tingle sensation in his entire arm. There are sadder words of tongue or pen than the of the stern teacher, who says: "B take out those shingles instantly. well does the unhappy boy know that will receive many more stripes after teacher has discovered the shingles the he would have done had he gone into a tion unplated. It is doubtful if shingle-plating system has ever succeed in a single case, but successive generation of boys put their faith in it only to sadly and painfully betrayed.

The Pleasantville boys were probab unusually well disposed to listen to t itinerant peddler, who was the real author of the explosion, for the reason that a co cus was soon to visit the villag . The peddler—who has not yet been anded but in pursuit of whom the police are w ground of the school a fortnight ag confidentially informed the boys that one dollar he would guarantee to each complete protection against the rod. discussed at some length the alum shingle systems, exposing their worthness, and then exhibited to the patent "youth's protector," consisting sort of india-rubber belt. This, he plained, was designed to be inflated placed in whatever locality a boy mi have reason to think needed protecti It would be completely invisible, and teacher could tell by the rebound of h cane whether his blows were falling up the protector or its wearer. The man was so plausible in his m ners, and the wisdom of providing again the results of surreptitiously attending circus was so manifest, that no less that thirty-two boys bought protectors. The who had no money borrowed from the who had, and in the general rejoicing w which the discovery of an efficient tector was hailed, every boy wished that his fellows should be able to defy the avenger, Unusual confidence was felt the protector, but it was agreed that I one should use it until the day after t circus, lest, by some untoward chance, teachers should discover its existence.

On Wednesday last the circus arrive and was attended by the thirty-two be already mentioned. Of course, their fence was immediately discovered, and Thursday afternoon the school was give a half-holiday, so that the thirty-two boys could be finished by supper-time Three teachers were employed in order hasten matters, and the first three bo who were called up were Masters Brown

Anderson, and McGinnis. Master Brown exploded with a loud re port at the first blow, and in a few second later his two companions shared his fat For the moment the teachers were alarm ed, fearing that they were in the present of some mysterious danger, but as boys writhed under subsequent blows the usual fashion, and showed no further signs of explosion, the work of education went on. Every one of the delug purchasers of the youth's protector ex ded under the impact of the cane, and excitement among the other boys heard the reports echoing through house was tremendous. When the w was finished the teachers made a cat investigation, and obtained from the in nant boys the story of the scandalous dishonest conduct of the peddler.

Although the youth's protector pro to be a delusion and a snare, it is proba that the principle of the theory is rig The protectors sold by the peddler to Pleasantville boys exploded because the were badly made, but had they been may of thick rubber they would very like have served their purpose. This, howe loes not in any way excuse the conduct the peddler. He knew that his protect were worthless, and that he was robbin the boys to whom he sold them. The is only too much reason to believe that was a secret agent of the circus, sent to lure boys to buy circus tickets by th promise that the protectors would them from ulterior calamity.

A woman gave birth to triplets the other day in New Orleans, and her husbane rushed at once to the river and jumped to drown himself, but was rescued. It was not, however, anxiety for the support to them, much less triplets.

CHURCH REPORT.—The abstract of the parochial and missionary reports of the Protestant Episcopal Church in this State for the last church year shows 2.671 families and 11,531 individuals in that church, against 2,554 families and 11,205 individuals for the previous year. The of 79, while the number confirmed was 400, a loss of 49. The number of communicants reported is 5,672 against 5,544 the year previous, an increase of 128 for the year. The number of pupils enrolled in the various Sunday schools shows a decrease of 104, being 2,935 for last year against 3,039 in the year preceding. The valuation of church property and the contributions for church purposes both show large gains. The value of church property in the last report was $347,050 against $343,960 the year before, and the contributions last year were $57,711.74, against

THE GOOD LITTE ALLAN'S SELF-JUDGMENT .- The Presbyterian tells the following affecting story:—
"Allan? Where is Allan?"

A moment ago he was playing with his little cart in the yard, hauling dirt to the currant bushes. I cannot tell how many cartfuls he carried. He was as busy as little man. But Allan had gone; there is his cart.

"Allan! Allan!" "I'se here," at last said a small voice from the back parlor. "What are you there for?" asked his mother, opening the door and looking in Allan did not answer at first. He was standing in the corner with a very sober look on his face. "Come out to your little cart," said his mother; "it is waiting for another run."

"I'se not been here long 'nuff," said the "What are you here for at all?" asked

"I punishing my ownself. I picked some green currants, and they went into my mouth," said Allan.

"Oh, when mother told you not to Green currants will make my little boy sick," said his mother in a sorry tone. "You needn't punish me," said Allan,

And she gave it to Allan and told him to run along and play, that she had forgiven him. And then she sat down and thought sadly how soon she and people, closing with a few apt would have to order some sample coffins addressed directly to the candidate, for her boy, seeing that he was too good haven't quit laughing about it yet. JOHNSTON CROPS AND POLITICS:-Clayton, July 20, 1880.—The cotton prospect in all this section was never so fine, perhaps. It is two weeks earlier than usual and well fruited. Corn is not so promising and will not much exceed a half crop. Altogether, however, the farmers are hopeful.

The time to talk politics has not yet arrived. People are busy in other directions, but they will answer promptly at "roll call." My observation for the past month in mixing with the people of three counties, establishes the fact that the Democratic nominees, State and National, are wise selections. Your correspondent in common with thousands of Southern soldiers well remembers that often during the late war, when we were in line and the conflict was just at hand, the inquiry would pass along the line, "who is in our When the answer came, as often front." it did, "Hancock's corps," our men were accustomed to say "Well, boys, we've got hot work to-day, Old Hancock is in front." For skill in leadership and pluck in the "line" no Division of the Union army surpassed Hancock's corps, and almost every soldier of Lee's army will endorse this statement. The Southern soldier is too brave not to appreciate valor, and now in peace will support most cordially the man that they met so warmly in time of war. "See if they do not."

ALAMANCE ITEMS:-Mebaneville, July 20, 1880.—The health of our section of country has not been as good this summer as heretofore. Typhoid fever is prevailing to a certain extent. It seems to be a mild type, for your correspondent cannot recall any deaths from it. There have been, however, several deaths from other causes; some of them were persons who had been afflicted for months or even years.

The wheat crop has turned out tolerably well. While the farmers would like to have made a great deal more, still they have generally made enough to live on, and in many cases much more. Some sections have been visited recently with refreshing rains. Our immediate community would rejoice upon having more.

Messrs. Scott & Co. have been manufacturing for several weeks two grades of excellent chewing tobacco. I do not think they have yet put any upon the market. The best grade is "Beauty Bright."

There probably will be raised very soon a Hancock and Jarvis flag. I have heard that the flag is now ready. It is feared by many that the assurance which the Democratic party takes to itself of gaining

The Supreme Court's Finding. POLAND'S REPORT SUPPLEMENTED.

[Special dispatch to the N. Y. World, 19th.] WASHINGTON, July 18 .- A decision rendered in 1875 by Justice Swayne, of the United States Supreme Court, has been called into prominence by the fact that it settles the question of General Garfield's position in the De Golyer matter beyond a doubt. The case in which this opinion of Justice Swayne was rendered was that of Chittenden against McClellan and others. It was tried in Cook county. Ill., in May, 1875, and was decided on appeal in October, 1879, in the United States Supreme Court. It may be said that Justice Swayne is a thorough Republican and an Ohio man. The Supreme Court opinion was delivered in the case of Burke against Child, the case of Chittenden against McClellan being submitted on the arguments and briefs filed in the former suit. Justice Swayne says:-

"The agreement with General Garfield, member of Congress, to pay him $5,000 as a contingent fee for procuring a contract which was itself made to depend upon a future appropriation by Congress-which appropriation could only come from a com mittee of which he was chairman-was sale of official influence, which no veil can cover, against the plainest principles of public policy. No counsellor-at-law while holding high office has a right to put himself in a position of temptation, and un ler pretence of making a legal argument exert his official influence upon public officers dependent upon his future action. Certainly the courts of justice will never lend themselves to enforce contracts obtained by such influence."

The effect of this disclosure on the men here who have endeavored in one form or another to palliate General Garfield's offence cannot be overestimated. It is a shock so severe that they are as yet unable to meet it.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS:-Eleven persons were drowned on Monday at six Northern watering places.

Mrs. John W. McCoy, a married lady of Wilmington, Del., yesterday assaulted Geo. Lewis with a cowhide for an alleged slander. Her husband stood by with a loaded revolver while the attack was made. The man was very severely punished, Lewis is superintendent of a brickyard.

Justus Hoffman, a German shoemaker, at Pittston. Pa., shot his wife and baby on Monday, instantly killing the baby and fatally wounding his wife. He was immediately arrested and taken to the Wilkesbarre jail to escape lynching. He had been on a spree, and that was at the bottom of

The National board of health authorities feel very hopeful that the Southern cities will escape a yellow fever epidemic this year. It is held that if a rigid quarantine is maintained at the various ports against vessels coming from suspected ports the precautions taken by the health authori-ties will keep yellow fever from visiting New Orleans and Memphis this summer.

The customary subscription list-heretofore meaning "your money or your place"—is being vigorously handed about at Washington. On one floor of the Government printing office, where there are eighty employees, the sum of $8.75 was collected. Two negroes from North Carolina were among the number in the room, and they declined to give anything. They stated most emphatically that they intended to vote for General Hancock.

At Chicago, yesterday, Martin Kraatz, a German, attacked his brother Henry with a shoemaker's knife, and inflicted a stab in the abdomen, which will prove fatal. Martin was on a spree, and was beating his wife to make her give him money to continue his debauch, when Henry interfered to protect her. A fierce struggle ensued, in which Henry received the fatal wound. Martin was arrested.

In Springfield, Ill., yesterday, Geo. Baber, late editor of the State Register, was attacked by Geo. W. Weber, President of the Register Company. Baber attempted to use his revolver when a lively tussle ensued. He then drew a paper cutter and stabbed Weber several times.

The police attempted to separate them, but before they succeeded Baber accident-ally cut one through the hand and another in the foot. Weber received one cut in the groin which may prove dangerous. The trouble arose from Baber's retirement from the paper and the publication of remarks about Weber. The value of all the coinage executed by the mints during the fiscal year just closed, $84,370,144, is the largest in any year thus far; the next largest was in 1878, $81,120,499. The coinage of 1878 was swollen by over $11,000,000 of trade dollars, since unknown to the Mints. The increase in 1879-'80 is in the gold, which is $56,157,735, against $40,986,000 in the previous year; the heaviest gold coinage was $62,614,000, in 1851. The coinage of halves, quarters, and dimes, which in 1875-7 was pushed to an unprecedented figure, under the demand for change, has almost ceased for the present. The twenty-cent piece, the silver three-cent, and the half-dime are no longer kuown to the land, and are no longer coined: the recent coinage of nickel fivecent and three-cent pieces is insignificant, while the coinage of the cent, last year, was something extraordinary. It was larger than in any year since 1864-5, $267,741 in value; the number of pieces was 26,774,150, all of them executed in Philadelphia.

City Populations. [New York Times.] The verdict of the census as to the comparative growth and pretensions of the chief cities of the Union is now known with substantial correctness and complete ness. New York City, of course. stands easily first, and is the only one requiring seven figures to express the total of its hu manity. At a long interval after it comes Philadelphia, which, during the last decade, grew with a growth nearly equal to New York, (24 per cent.,) but which in 1880 had not yet arrived at the total reached by New York in 1870. New York's total is 1,209,561, Philadelphia's 842,000, and Brooklyn's 554,693, a growth for the last-named of 40 per cent. Chicago and St. Louis have changed places since 1870. Chicago's population increased 60 per cent., to 477,500. St. Louis's increased only 21 per cent., or to 375,000, and has consequently fallen one step in the scale. Boston, too, has beaten Baltimore, and now, with an increase of 40 per cent. as against Baltimore's 23, stands sixth, with a total of 352,000 inhabitants. Baltimore has 330,000. Cincinnati increased its total 19 per cent., or to 255,804, and stands eighth, as it did 10 years ago. New Orleans and San Francisco show another comparative change. New Orleans increased only 8 per cent., as against San Francisco's 51 percent of gain, and consequently it has fallen from ninth in 1870 to tenth in 1880. Its population is 207,328, and San Francisco's is 227,350. Other six figured cities, making 18 in all thus far, are, in order, Washington, (160,000;) Cleveland, (157,000;) Buffalo, (149,000;) Newark, 136,000;) Milwaukee, (130,000;) Detroit, 119,000;) Louisville, (112,000;) and Providence, (104,000.) Among these 8 there have also been many comparative changes, as will appear from the order of 1870, which was Buffalo, Washington,

Newark, Louisville, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, Providence. How these changes resulted is sufficiently apparent from the fact that Washington's increase was 45 per cent.; Cleveland's, 71; Buffalo's. 27; Newark's, 30; Milwaukee's, 92; Detroit's, 50; Louisville's, 11; and Providence's, 52. In order to make the comparison of six-figured cities complete, the claims of Pittsburg and Jersey City, returns from which are not now at hand, should doubtless be taken into account. Denver (Col.) reports a gain of 614 per cent., which is entirely exceptional, and is, of course, due to special well known causes. Other noticeably large gains are 244 per cent. at Minneapolis, 195 at Pawtucket, 142 at Chester, 106 at Atlanta, 102 at Waterbury, and 100 at St. Paul, from which it will appear that prosperity in this respect at least, has fallen nearly equably on the North, South, East, and West. York's momentum, so to speak, sufficiently

[St. Louis Paper.]

The monkeys at the St. Louis Fair grounds are rapidly becoming civilized. They seem to understand that for certain smart tricks they will be rewarded with knick-knacks. One who was seen to slap a whining baby recently was given a piece of banana peel by a lady who witnessed the castigation. The peeling was handed through the bars on the end of a parasol, as everybody knows the cage is too far away from the railing to be reached with the hand. The little man with the tail watched the approach of the peeling with sparkling eyes, but when he found that it contained no fruit he threw it away, climbed upon the bars and chattered as it to beg for a piece of the banana which he saw in the visitor's hand. The lady understood what he wanted and held a piece of the fruit as far as her arm would reach. The monkey held out his own to meet it, but both were too short. The lady tried to put the banana on the end of her parasol, but it would not stick. Then she turned to a companion and said in a per-plexed tone: "What shall I do? The poor little fellow wants it so much and I cen't get it to him." The monkey became excited and chattered so vehemently that the lady was compelled to notice him. As soon as he caught her eye, he got down on the floor and made a motion, which seemed to say, "Throw it." Then he reached through the bars and put his hand n through, as if to say throw it here. These movements were accompanied with an expression of the face almost equal to language, and the chattering was incessant. He was evidently trying to answer the question the lady had asked. At least so she thought, and she understood what he meant. He wanted her to throw the banana right there into the trough whence he could get it. Several other monkeys were watching and the chances seemed to be that one of them would get it. The lady threw it to the place designated and he snatched it up. Several other monkeys grabbed at it, but he was too quick for them. Having obtained possession of the coveted treasure he retired to a convenient perch on the tree, and before beginning to eat it he bowed his head and seemed to thank the lady very cordially.

The Express Business.

[New York Times.] In one of several suits of the United States Circuit Court, recently brought by the Adams and the Southern Express Companies against certain Southern railroad corporations, it was stated that these two companies cover 21,200 miles of railroad, employ 4,300 persons, and make 900 daily trips over 64,500 miles, aggregating nearly 20,000,000 miles of travel annually. For the transportation of their freight, they pay the railroad companies over $2,000. 000 a year. In 1878 they carried for the Government $1,200,000,000. In 1879 they carried $661,000,000 for the government and $1,080,000,000 for the public. In New York City the Adams Express Company receives and delivers an average of 14,000 packages daily, and uses 918 horses. The invested capital of all the express companies of the United States exceeds $30,000,000. The express business has grown to these enormous proportions in about forty years. It was in 1839 that William F. Harden made a trip from Boston to New York as a public messenger, having in his charge some packages, com-same two cities by Alvan Adams and P. B. Burke. In 1841 Mr. William B. Dinsmore became a partner, and took charge of the New York branch of the business. The success of these pioneers led to the formation of other lines between other cities. In 1854 several companies were consolidated in the now famous Adams Express Company, which rapidly enlarged the field of its operations. In the beginning of 1861 it was doing an extensive business in the Southern States, when the war made a suspension of operations necessary. The Southern Express Company was then organized under the laws of deorgia, and by purchase succeeded to the property, business, and good-will of the Adams Express Company in tle Southern States. The two companies, however, have sustained intimate business relations.

His Wife Bail for his Harmlessness.

[New York Herald Court Reports.] There was a great hubbub and scraping of heels in the corridor before they projected a little slate-colored man into the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday. He was not a bit abashed by the Judge or onlookers, though, and when he had come up with a jolt against the bar he bobbed up his head and demanded if any one knew who "dis cullud gemman" was.

"Haven't the pleasure of your acquain-tance," said his Honor, "but reference to the blotter bursts up any incog dodge of yours. You are plainly set down here as Jasper Clay. Does the Court err?" "You got it right," called out the pris oner. "Dis is Jasper Clay, all hisself, and dahs de makins ob a dozen stan up and knock down tuzzles in him, too. Jes let him hab a roun' wif summun and you do de specklatin'; dat's all I ask fo'.'

"I'm sorry to refuse so modest a re quest," said his Honor. "Oh, y'aint gwine ter do it, eh?" said the prisoner, louder. "I'se so sorry. T'would jes be fun for me t' do a little gougin' or a little cuttin'. I'se game, I is. all aroun', and when dahs some lambastin' goin' on I'se bad all de way down from de wool to de patten ledders. Jes see," and the small darky wheeled about and attitudinized with pugilistic fervor. "Here's an engagement for you, Mrs. Clay!" the magistrate called out, and there stepped to the stand a colored Amazon with an arm like a truck axle. The prisoner faltered a moment, but stiffened up again and shouted:-

"I'se on it, chillern, you bet yo' life, and you don't bluff me wit an olt ooman in kaliker gown."

The new comer gave Jasper Clay a look that made him quail, and then she said:-"Jidge, kin I tote the old fool 'ome? He'll jes go on that way a-erowin' like a game cock long's you lissen."

"But aren't you afraid? Won't he fight?" ueried his Honor.

"Wot, fite!" cried the Amazon in amazement. "Jasper Clay fite! Good lans! Why, Lur bress yo' soul, if dat chuckleheaded niggah could fite twice as well as he could wuck it 'ud take 'bout free hundred ob him to tackle a sick cat, and den vou'd hab t' draw de cat's teef and tie it to a coal box." The enconium on Jasper's bravery was deemed sufficient warrant for his harmlessness, and he went off quite meekly.

Money is hard to collect just now in Galveston. A Galveston merchant asked another if a clerk who had been in the employ of the latter was honest. "I can't tell for certain," was the reponse; "he does all the collecting, but he has never brought in a cent yet." Jose Mariar Salaza saw a young girl in an Arizona mining camp, fell madly in love with her, and within three hours asked her to marry him. She declined, and he killed her on the spot. Retribution was as speedy as his courtship had been, for he was at once hanged by the miners.

Who is Your Wife?

A COMPLEX CONUNDRUM COLLOQUIALLY

BY WALDORF H. PHILLIPS. We beg leave to announce that we have published, under the above title, a very novel and remarkable work. It is, in the form of fiction, a humorous and powerful satire on Divorce Laws and their compli-cations. The author takes for his text a proposed new marriage ceremony, thus:— "Do you take this woman to be your wife-until you are divorced? "Do you take this man to be your husband—until you change your mind?

"Then, they whom I unite, let some Court put asunder."

The work is full of humor and keen sa-The work is full of humor and keen satire; it is decidedly a most original and novel addition to American publications, and it is confidently believed will prove the literary sensation of the year.
